Import/export regulations are a set of rules and policies established by governments to control the flow of goods across international borders. These regulations can have a significant impact on the cost of importing or exporting inverters, which in turn can affect their prices in the market. There.

Recent U.S. import tariffs on photovoltaic (PV) equipment, including inverters, have not yet precipitated a sharp decline in inverter inventories due to substantial “pre-tariff” stockpiles that remain in the distribution pipeline. Inverters subject to the new duties have seen only modest price.
